FREE OR REDUCED PRICE MEAL PROGRAM

For many years, the Department of Agriculture has conducted the National School Lunch and School Breakfast Program. Under this program, eligible students receive school lunch and breakfast at no cost or reduced price. Eligibility is based upon a formula that considers family income and the number of people in the household.

Parents are strongly encouraged to apply for free or reduced price meals benefits. The completed application should be submitted to the administrative office (Bonnie). Parents are quickly notified if their children qualify for this program.

Any time your income changes, you may reapply to see if you qualify for free or reduced lunch.

Call Bonnie at 237-2202 x102 if you'd like her to send a form home with your child. You may also download a form by going to the school's website: www.newauburn.k12.wi.us and click on "School Lunch Program and Forms" in orange letters on the left hand side. A letter pops up and at the bottom click on "Letter/Application" in purple letters. Fill it out and return it to Bonnie.

Questions regarding the free or reduced price meal program can be directed to Cory Martens(237-2202 x 105) or Lucy Lenfesty (237-2202 x 106).

PARENT NOTICE REGARDING SCHOOL WEATHER CLOSINGDear Parents and Students:

Today was our first school closing of the year due to weather. I have been made aware some problems related to the closing procedure, so I would like to express my sincere apologies to any student or parent who may have been inconvenienced by this process. Please allow me to help all of you understand what goes on behind the scenes during a school closing.

To start with, any time the temperatures, wind chills, or driving conditions warrant special attention, most of the area superintendents begin talking to each other very early on. Today's weather was no exception. I was one of several area superintendents who were discussing the weather conditions for a couple of hours last night. Since the forecast was in the marginal range for closing or delaying the start of school, we decided to wait until this morning. Again, we began studying the conditions and talking about 4:45 a.m. With wind chills predicted to be in the -35 degree range, many of us decided to err on the side of safety and cancel school. We knew a late start would not allow the wind chills to improve much. We all like to get the message out as early as possible, but it was simply too difficult to call last night.

Next comes the process of getting the word out to all of our families and employees. In New Auburn, we have several people involved in getting the word out. First, we have one person in charge of activating the automated calling system as soon as a decision has been made. Our automated system calls both home and cell phone numbers in a matter of a couple minutes, if you have submitted your current telephone numbers to the district. We know that some people, including me, never received the automated message. I will be calling a meeting with my staff to determine why that happened and we will find out what we have to do to resolve it. If you did not receive a call on your home or cell phone, please let the school know.

Please check your answering machines at home, too. Our automated system gives us a report and we had a 94% success rate on calls that went out to your homes. Unfortunately, it also shows that over 100 calls went directly to answering machines or voice mail, so we have to rely on our families and employees being diligent about checking their answering systems right away in the morning when the weather is questionable. For those who were not called, we will try and determine why the message did not go out to you.

We also have staff assigned to call the school closing in to the local television and radio stations listed below. The radio stations were mistakenly not called this morning. We will address this problem and make certain all stations are called in the future. You may tune in to the following stations for updated weather closings: WQOW-TV Fox 25/48, WEAU TV 13, WJMC, WAXX/WAYY, and IHeart Media.

One thing people wonder the most is how cold it has to be to close. This is very tricky...especially at 5:00 a.m. We have to do our best to monitor the weather reports and hour-by-hour forecasts. The weather can vary quite a lot in just a few miles, so some homes think it is too nice to close and others can get very upset if we don't close. We also wrestle with the issue of straight temperatures vs. wind chills. As a general rule, my advice is for families to make a point of watching for potential school closings or delays if the straight temperatures approach 25 to 30 below zero or if the sustained wind chills are in the 35-40 below temperatures. All of these things can determine delaying the start vs. closing. Again, this can be difficult to call because there can be a ten or fifteen degree variance between homes.

Ultimately, our number one concern is the safety of our students and staff. We certainly can close school in northern Wisconsin every time we get an arctic blast, but we do try to keep our children out of harm's way. Please know that we also depend greatly on our parents to make sound decisions about your own children. If you disagree with my decision and feel the weather is too extreme to send your children to school, you have the right to keep your children home and I will respect that decision. We also depend on you to be sure your children are dressed appropriately for the weather. Please dress your children in warm clothes at all times. You never know when a school bus could break down and be stalled for a short time without heat.

Once again, we apologize for any inconvenience you may have experienced if you were not aware of the school closing today. We know that 94% of the families were contacted and we will do whatever we can to make that 100%. Please call us if you were not contacted.

Thank you.

Title of the fourth grade presentation was "Tasting the Goodness of Wisconsin." A power point was presented highlighting the significant nutrients found in key fruit and vegetable products grown in Wisconsin. In addition, information links were made to these fruit and vegetable products in regard to the importance of soil and what is needed in the soil to grow quality fruit and vegetables. During the program students were provided opportunity to sample some of the products such as strawberries, blueberries, carrots, and broccoli.

A third grade presentation was provided titled "Nutrients Grow." During this program third grade students teamed with eighth grade agriculture students and created Sunflower Garden Markers. Prior to making the garden marker, a power point presentation was made featuring information about sunflowers and how to properly grow them. Students were introduced to the by-products of sunflowers and were given opportunity to sample roasted sunflower seeds.

school students created flowers. Each flower included a photograph of the pre-school student at the center. Students made important connections of what is required to grow healthy plants and how it starts with the soil and its important nutrients. They also related the idea that individuals who learn new information, grow in knowledge.

New Auburn's second grade class became involved with the Nutrients for Life ~ Helping Our Communities Grow activities with a program presentation titled, Grocery Connections. Second grade students teamed with 8th grade agriculture students/FFA chapter members focusing on completing activities in a Farm Fun Activity Book produced by the United States Department of Agriculture. Within the activity pages, students gained knowledge linking soil and nutrients with plant growth, harvesting of food prod-plates. All students were given a chance to sample different kinds of fruit.

New Auburn FFA chapter members, Whitley Harelstad and Katelyn Galetka, led the Nutrients for Life ~ Helping Our Communities Grow calendar project. Their designed calendar was distributed to all district staff at New Auburn.

What made this project unique was gaining random student and staff comments, which

1. Remember, your child is not your friend. It's not about your child liking you or even thanking you for what you do. It's important to remember that your child is not your friend—he's your child. Your job is to coach him to be able to function in the world. This means teaching him to behave respectfully to others, not just you. When you think your child might be crossing the line, a good rule of thumb is to ask yourself, "Would I let the neighbor say these things to me? Would I let a stranger?" If the answer is no, don't let your child do it, either. Some day when your child becomes an adult, your relationship may become more of a friendship, but for now, it's your job to be his parent: his teacher, coach and limit setter—not the buddy who lets him get away with things.

PARENT RESOURCE: Do Your Kids Respect You?

By Janet Lehman, MSW

(Empoweringparents.com)

We often forget that children aren't born with a built-in sense of respect for others.

While each child has a different personality, all children need to be taught to be respectful. From birth, kids learn to manipulate their world to get their needs met—this is natural. But it's our job as parents to teach them respectful ways of doing this.

People wonder why kids have gotten so much more disrespectful these days—we see children and teens arguing with adults (or ignoring them outright), using foul language, copping an attitude, and not using manners or respecting those in authority. Sadly, this has become the norm for many children and teens. In my opinion, it really is a different world right now than the one we grew up in. Movies, music, video games and television all seem to glorify a disrespectful, angry, rude way of dealing with others. This means that in some ways we have to work harder as parents to teach our kids to be respectful. Added to this is the fact that parents are also busier than ever before, which makes it much harder to respond immediately to our kids. Let's face it, it's easier to let things slide when you're worn out and stressed from working so hard.

Another phenomenon that has increased over time: Many parents have a hard time looking at their kids in a realistic light. In some ways, our own parents were less defensive and more open to the fact that their kids were not "perfect." I can't overstate how important it is to be willing to look at your children realistically, noting both their strengths and their areas of weakness. This allows you to see inappropriate behavior as it happens and address it—and not make excuses or ignore it.

So how can you change the culture in your own house if disrespectful behavior is starting—or is already a way of life? Here are 9 things you can do as a parent today to start getting respect back from your kids. (Tips will be shared monthly.)

DO YOU WANT TO CONTINUE RECEIVING THE TROJAN TALK NEWSLETTER IN THE MAIL?

In an effort to save money, the school district has decided to send the Trojan Talk newsletter to only those individuals who specifically tell us they want to continue receiving the newsletter in the mail. This change will begin in May 2015.

We are more than happy to continue sending out the newsletter to those who want to keep receiving it, but we also suspect that we have a significant number of people who may be viewing the newsletter electronically now. Each newsletter is available through a link on the school district website, so we believe that many residents are opting to view the newsletter that way, as opposed to reading a hard copy. (Open the district web page and scroll down to News)

It does not make sense for us to spend money on hard copies of the newsletter that are not being read, so we need your help in determining who wants to keep receiving the newsletter the old fashioned way.

If you would like to continue to receive the Trojan Talk newsletter in the mail, you may do any of the following to let us know prior to May:

1. Complete the form below and mail it to us or drop it off at the school office.
2. Call us and let us know. 715-237-2202, ext. 102.
3. Email us at llefesty@newauburn.k12.wi.us.

Please keep me on the Trojan Talk newsletter mailing list.
